The Hongkong Telegraph

HONGKONG, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1882.

In one of his famous Moral Essays, Pope very pertinently queried

"Who shall decide, when doctors disagree,
And soundest counsels doubt like you and me?"

The professional differences, not only of professors of the healing art, but of the various classes of scientific men, have passed into a proverb all the world over, and led to warm disputes, and bitter controversies innumerable on the public platform and in books, pamphlets and the public press. Hongkong is essentially a scientific colony, and undoubtedly a pleasant place for professional lines to fall into; but it does not therefore follow that such a crowd of so-called scientists are essential for Hongkong. However, we have our scientists, and as an old English writer puts it, be the bargain good or bad we must of necessity make the best of it.

Two of our best known professional men made a public appearance as experts before Chief Justice Sir GEORGE PHILLIPPO, in the Summary Jurisdiction Court yesterday. These two experts were Messrs. WILLIAM DANBY, and ROBERT G. ALFORD, architects, surveyors, civil engineers, &c., &c., and the important question they were called upon to decide had relation to the genuineness of a composition frequently used by Chinese builders, and known as "chunam." It appears from the evidence adduced in court that a contractor named PANG SING KAI agreed in March, last, for the sum of $125, to make a "chunam" tennis court in the garden of Mr. HIRST, under certain plainly defined stipulations, the principal of which were—rooting up and re-planting several trees, levelling the ground, and laying down three inches of "chunam." The work was carried out and $50 paid on account. Mr. HIRST promising to pay the balance of $75 within two months. At the expiry of this term application was made for payment, which was refused on the grounds that the work had not been properly done, that the court had been rendered perfectly useless by the ground having been imperfectly levelled, and that the "chunam" was not "chunam" at all.

Mr. WILLIAM DANBY C.E. was called for the defendant and swore that he had made an examination of the tennis court, and found that the "chunam" laid down was not "chunam" at all, with the exception of an eighth of an inch on the top; the matter below was red earth. Mr. DANBY enlightened the Court as to the ingredients of which "chunam" is composed—said

Ingredients being lime and earth incorporated in proper proportions. He further certified that the "chunam" in Mr. HIRST's tennis court was merely a skin, which had been blistered by the sun, and cracked by people walking about on it. The material at present laid down could not be made use of again.

Now for a look at the other side of the picture. Mr. R. G. ALFORD, architect, surveyor, &c., called by the plaintiff, opined that the tennis court was in fairly satisfactory condition, considering it had been in use for six months. The "chunam" was not of the best quality, and the work had not been well done, still the court was in good enough condition to play on. He had frequently seen the same kind of "chunam" before. He measured the "chunam" and found it to be two inches thick; and he thought the present materials could be used again. Mr. ALFORD in reply to the Chief Justice expressed his belief that an inch, or an inch and a half of good "chunam" would place the tennis court in a satisfactory condition.

We do not profess to know anything about "chunam," so we modestly decline to commit ourselves to any opinion as to whether Mr. DANBY's professional statements are correct and those of Mr. ALFORD erroneous, or vice versa; but we are certainly on the safe side in affirming that one of the two experts must have blundered. In this view we are supported by Sir GEORGE PHILLIPPO, whose very practical line of action deserves hearty commendation. The learned Chief Justice probably knows as much about "chunam" as we do ourselves, but as he mildly expressed a belief that the statements of the professional gentlemen were rather contradictory, and intimated his intention of having a look at the place himself before giving judgment, it is fair to presume that in the not very remote past his lordship knew something about tennis courts. The worst element in cases where experts are examined, and where their evidence on simple facts and mere matters of detail differ so greatly, is the censure conveyed either to one side or the other by the judge's verdict. Either Mr. W. DANBY or Mr. R. G. ALFORD will look supremely foolish after Sir GEORGE PHILLIPPO has paid his "professional" visit to Mr. HIRST's tennis court, and by his decision shown to the Hongkong public what he thinks of the opinions of our rival local surveyors in regard to that wonderful compound "chunam."

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

A PARADE and inspection of the Government and Volunteer Fire Brigades will take place at the Central Fire Brigade Station this afternoon at 4.30 p.m.

WE are informed by the Agent of the Occidental and Oriental S. S. Co., that the steamer Gangli left San Francisco for this port on the 28th ult., and is due here on or about the 27th instant.

A WILTSHIRE schoolboy, when asked to name the seven nations of Canaan, drawled out, "The Hivites, the Perizites, the Puseyites, &c." This gentle youth had evidently been trained in an atmosphere of religious partisanship.

THE China Mail of last night "has news from Canton which still further confirms their remarks as to some serious stoppage having occurred to the completion of the Canton-Kowloon Telegraph." Our contemporary has however apparently received no further news to confirm the "serious riots" and "several people killed" of their previous remarks; and it is not considered worth while to contradict these unfounded reports.

THE youthful mind drinks in information from advertisements much more readily than through the orthodox channels. A curate was questioning some Sunday-school children, and at last asked, "Who was Enoch?" The question was passed right down the class without an answer. Two places from the bottom an urchin of some ten summers held out his hand. "Well, my little friend," said the curate, urbanely, "tell these ignorant boys and girls who Enoch was." "If you please, sir, Enoch went to heaven without trying, and his wife was turned into a pillar of fruit salt."

A BRONZE statuette recently found at Beyrouit is a female figure, entirely naked, and crowned with a crescent. One hand rest upon an ear, with an inscription, "To the Sidonians," in Phoenician characters. The figure is supposed to represent the goddess Astarte, and to be of the time of the Seleucidae.

"LEND you twenty poun?" said a well known Hebrew obliger in Sydney, to a certain promiscuous citizen, "vell I doan know—vat security?" "Security!" exclaimed the citizen, "why I've been libelled in four different papers." "Vas de libels true?" "Well between ourselves they were." "Den shep inside; I loan you dat money straight away."

SWANSCOMBE Church, near Darford, was the scene of a little fun one Sunday morning a short time since. The rector published the banns of marriage between himself and the daughter of a well-known high art furniture dealer, who resides in the same parish. No notice was taken of the announcement until after the sermon, when the young lady's brother rose and protested against it, on the ground that it was made without his sister's knowledge; but the rector, nothing daunted, replied, "It's too late now. Let us pray."

THE writer of this paragraph remembers trying to pay Charles Mathews a graceful compliment: "My friend, Douglas Thompson," said I, "the well-known professor of elocution, tells me that he believes you could play the part of 'Hamlet' better than any actor on the English stage." "Give my compliments," returned the ungrateful comedian, "to your friend, Douglas Thompson, the well-known professor of elocution, and inform him that I shall endeavor to retain his good opinion by never attempting the character in question."—London Society.

ACCORDING to the Bulletin a Charters Towers grocer named Belcher called attention, at a committee meeting of the School of Arts there, to the "enormous price of advertising in the local papers." Thady O'Kane the Editor of the Northern Miner retorted with the statement that the committee only advertised with him to the extent of 4s. 6d. in one month; and called attention to the extravagant charges made for kerosene. Mr. Belcher's spare time is now thoroughly occupied in going about and "wishing he hadn't spoke."

SAYS the Bulletin—It was in Queensland, one short month ago. The marriage had been duly consummated by the rev. father, and the feast was done, when, to the amazement of all, the blushing bride, in the exuberance of her spirits, wanted to substitute another for her liege lord. He naturally pointed out that the desire was unreasonable, even unbefitting; but she persisted, and could not be induced to retire in the usual and lawful manner. The issue was a general mixing up, eviction of the guests, and a free fight. The bride opened her honeymoon that evening in the lock-up. Her husband's feelings were of the most joyful kind; and even "discharged with a caution" next morning scarcely set matters quite right.

THE submarine vessel now being constructed at Bucharest, it is claimed, will accomplish what no other submarine craft has ever been found equal to. The plan contemplates a vessel capable of moving under water for twelve hours without any renewal of air. Steam is the motor employed, and the speed reckoned upon is greater than that attained by sailing vessels. Practically, the management consists in simply sinking the vessel by opening certain valves, but its return to the surface involves more complex operations. An electric light, which is to be supplied, will, it is ascertained, render objects fairly distinguishable. For renewal of air it is not necessary that the vessel rise to the surface—the means resorted to for this purpose being an apparatus that can be sent up, and which, by working a pump, forces air into suitable receivers.

AN American journal tells us that it is a mistake to eat quickly. Mastication performed in haste must be imperfect even with the best of teeth, and due admixture of the salivary secretion with the food cannot take place. When a crude mass of inadequately crushed muscular fibre, or undivided solid material of any description, is thrown into the stomach, it acts as a mechanical irritant, and sets up a condition in the mucous membrane lining that organ which greatly impedes, if it does not altogether prevent, the process of digestion. When the practice of eating quickly and filling the stomach with unprepared food is habitual, the digestive organ is rendered incapable of performing its proper functions. Either a much larger quantity of food than would be necessary under natural conditions is required, or the system suffers from lack of nourishment. Those animals which were intended to feed hurriedly were either gifted with the power of rumination or provided with gizzards. Man is not so furnished, and it is fair to assume that he was intended to eat slowly.

PROFESSOR Lockyer is of the opinion that there are many facts suggested by the spectra of solar and stellar physics, which seem to show the elements themselves, or, at all events, some of them, are compound bodies. Thus, it would appear that the hotter a star the more simple is its spectrum; for the brightest, and therefore probably the hottest stars, such as Sirius, furnish spectra showing only very thick hydrogen lines, and a few very thin metallic lines, characteristic of elements of low atomic weight. On the other hand, the cooler stars, such as our sun, are shown by their spectra to contain a much larger number of metallic elements than stars such as Sirius, but no non-metallic elements; and, again, the coolest stars furnish fluted band spectra, characteristic of compounds of metallic with non-metallic elements, and of non-metallic elements. These facts appear to meet with a simple explanation, if it be supposed that, as the temperature increases, the compounds are first broken up into their constituent elements; and that these elements then undergo decomposition into elements of lower atomic weight.

THE Spanish steamer Emmy docked at Kowloon last night.

"WHEN George the Third was King" it was much more an offence for a woman to appear without rouge than it now is to be seen with it. Young girls were not allowed to wear it, however, and the saying arose, "She is marrying to wear rouge and diamonds." It was supposed that gold had the property of attracting the blood to any spot on which it might be rubbed, and girls used to rub their lips and cheeks with sovereigns. Of all rouges now in use the one said to be the best is made by dissolving a quarter of an ounce of finest carmine in half an ounce of liquid ammonia, and adding, after two days, a pint of rosewater and half an ounce of triple essence of roses. A new rouge is perfectly white when applied, but the pale girl has not been half an hour in the open air before her cavalier is delighted to perceive that a rich, healthy glow is overspreading her cheek, and he is rather inclined to think that his conversational powers are partly responsible for the improvement. The preparation must be carefully used, as it is not easy to judge of the effect until it changes color. All rouges injure the skin in time, particularly those in which mercury is an ingredient.

Two more characteristic anecdotes about Bandmann, "the greatest tragedian in the world." Daniel Edward required the aid of a few "supers" for several of his Shakespearean representations, and at our suggestion engaged several men of the R. A.—some of whom are fairly good amateurs—agreeing to pay them one dollar per man for each performance. The honorable Bandmann on settling up with these men refused to carry out his promise, said they ought to be satisfied with seeing the performance free of charge, and eventually palmed them off with 50 cents a head. A Chinese carpenter was employed to erect the balcony scene in "Romeo and Juliet."—That scene where Daniel looked a cross between a barrel organ man and jolly Jack Falstaff, and in which "the little donkey's" San Francisco love making experiences stood her in good stead—and after working at it for a whole day came for his wages. He asked for half a dollar. "Give the scoundrel ten cents and kick him off the stage," howled the eminent one to his stage manager, and this was the sum actually paid. The orchestra Bandmann engaged for Othello he never paid at all. He thought they received quite enough by being permitted free of charge to see him in his great mission of making Shakespeare famous. We are not quite sure what are the proper terms applied by law to the tragedian's acts above mentioned. In our own homely way we characterize them as swindling transactions of the paltriest and meanest kind. We wonder if our learned friend Mr. Francis thinks that it is for the public benefit these shady doings of his late eminently respectable client should be exposed!

CHAN ACHAN, a coolie, was charged this morning before Mr. Wodehouse with stealing a silk jacket and pair of pants, valued at $4. Chung Tai Shan who described himself as a tragedy-merchant belonging to the Wing Ngai Sheung company now performing at the Tung Hing Theatre said he had retired to rest in the theatre last night, after the "Opera was over" and was awakened by some one pulling the bed curtain on one side. The prisoner grabbed the coat and pants which he, the "tragedian" had taken off previous to turning in, and made tracks with them. The Chinese child of Thespis was not to be done out of his upper and nether coverings in a la ta manner, so calling out "Chief" he started a la the pursuer of the celebrated Tam O'Shanter in chase, and the consequence was the "annexer" of the pants and jacket was run to earth. Defendant stated that he went to the theatre yesterday to while away a passing hour, being fond of the drama, but getting a jiffy tired he fell asleep and did not wake up till the show was over and the building closed up for the night. In groping about he accidentally got into the actor's quarters, when some "people caught hold of him and said he went in there to steal, which was far from his intention. He is a resident of West Point and came to Hongkong to look for work. Mr. Wodehouse very charitably supplied Mr. Chan Achan with the thing he desired by giving him a three month's job in the Government service, besides supplying him with free board, lodging and clothes for the above named period.

FROM a notice in our advertising columns it will be observed that the Royal Italian Opera Company will shortly start on their winter campaign. They intend leaving Manila before the end of the present month, and hope to be able to arrange for one representation in Hongkong prior to their departure for Shanghai. The opera they have selected for this performance is Verdi's "ERENANI." The Shanghai season is expected to last until the middle of December, and then the Company will return to Hongkong for the regular winter season. We understand that the company, augmented as it has been lately by a number of first class artists from Italy, will be the most powerful combination we have yet seen in Italian opera in this colony. Admirers of high class musical abilities united to dramatic powers of no mean order will be pleased to learn that one of the artists lately arrived from Europe is Signor Baggiolo, the basso of Signor Cagli's troupe, a gentleman who gained distinguished honours in Hongkong during his former visits. If Signor Baggiolo appears as Don Ruy in "Erenani" the opera goes off Hongkong have a treat in store. In addition to a new tenor, prima donna, basso, &c., a well known French maitre has been specially brought from Europe to conduct the operas. The December programme in Hongkong will commence with a subscription series of six operas, the operas to be selected by the subscribers from the Company's repertoire of 27 famous works by the most celebrated composers. Full particulars relating to subscriptions will be found in the advertisement; but we may state that a plan of the theatre may be seen and seats secured at Messrs. Kelly and Walsh's, Queen's Road.

WE are glad to hear from Mr. Charles Ford, the honorary secretary of the Hongkong Horticultural Society that the committee have decided to hold an Exhibition about the usual time next year, if sufficient funds can be obtained by subscriptions and donations to meet the probable costs. It appears that last year the subscriptions collected were so small that a large amount had to be taken from the Society's reserve fund to meet the expenses of the Exhibition. This is not as it should be, and we therefore hope that the public will come forward more liberally on this occasion, so as to enable the committee to carry out the worthy objects they have in view. We understand that it is intended to have a Poultry Show again. Might we suggest to the committee, if any difficulty should arise in regard to funds, that a bazaar amongst the well wishers of the Society might easily be arranged, which would be sure to prove a remunerative attraction at the show! In such a good cause we feel sure that Signor Traebini would once more bring his peep show and his wondrous "suit of sables" out of their retirement.

In the expressive language of the immortal Mr. Toots we ask—what is our morning contemporary's little game? Yesterday afternoon the honorary secretary of the Cricket Club sent round to the three local papers as an item of news, the information that a match would be played on Saturday next between teams selected by the Treasurer and Secretary respectively. The circular which reached us last, distinctly states that the information conveyed therein was for our local columns. And as a paragraph it duly appeared in the Telegraph and China Mail. And so it did in the Daily Press; but as the morning paper evidently does not care about publishing news items unless it is paid for so doing, the "artful one" also repeated the secretary's circular as an advertisement. This is about the meanest and most contemptible dodge we have ever come across in Hongkong, always excepting the gratuitous advice tendered to Signor Hoffich not to advertise in the Telegraph. The Daily Press will, one of these days, request payment for publishing the results of our local cricket matches and public meetings. The latest dodge, however, is rather too transparent to go down with Mr. W. de St. Croix. We venture to predict that when the Maudslayi bill for this advertisement is sent in, it will be returned, endorsed in Mr. St. Croix's well known fat in choice Chinese—"no savey."

A DEPLORABLE accident, says a home contemporary, has occurred at Cannes to a member of Sanger's circus troupe. A negro, who was replacing the regular lion-tamer, who was wounded at Frejus, was entering the lion's cage, when his foot slipped, and he fell on his face. The lions, with their natural instinct, rushed upon the prostrate man, and repeatedly tore his flesh, a young one especially holding him with persistence, and tearing his thigh. An assistant rushed to his rescue, and repelled four of the lions with his pitchfork, but the fifth refused to let go till a red hot bar had been thrust down his mouth, when the unfortunate negro, still conscious, dragged himself out of the cage, and was carried off, bleeding profusely. The spectators meanwhile were almost paralysed with horror, which was soon changed into panic when it was perceived that the door was open for at least thirty seconds while the negro was being carried off. The lions might have sprung upon the assembly. A rush was made to the entrances, and the alarm which spread outside was only ended by the opportune action of an assistant who slammed the door of the cage. The poor negro having reached the hospital, though accompanied by a doctor, was refused admission because he was without an order. He was taken back to the circus and again to the hospital, where he was finally admitted. This gross mismanagement cost him his life, as he died from the loss of blood entailed during the double journey. This is the third accident which has occurred in this troupe.

WE were rather surprised during the festivities on board the Honani on Saturday last, when compliments and toasts, and expressions of gratitude and thanks were flying around, from directors to shareholders, and from shareholders back again to directors, and special thanks were tendered to the general body of the Company's employees, that no courteous acknowledgment was made of the very eminent services rendered to the Hongkong, Canton, and Macao Steamboat Company by the quiet, grey-haired and ruddy looking old gentleman, under whose command this vessel, which would not answer her helm in the placid waters of the Pearl River, was safely piloted from the banks of the Clyde in a most unfavorable season of the year, and without any very serious mishap, to the port of Hongkong, a distance of considerably over ten thousand miles. When experienced orators were expatiating on the merits of steam, and praising in no stinted terms the magnificent attributes of the Honani; when congratulations and thanks were flying round like grape shot in a sea fight, it was certainly singular that Captain Barnett's name should have escaped notice. No doubt it was an oversight, but nevertheless a noteworthy one. These gentlemen who particularly observed the eccentric manner in which the Honani answered her helm in the Canton river last Saturday, will be able to appreciate the difficulties which must have beset Captain Barnett in steering such an unwieldy and apparently unmanageable "ark" in mid ocean, where the breezes have a habit of blowing rather hard at times. And yet Captain Barnett, on being interrogated as to the difficulties which beset his passage out, quietly replied that the steamer behaved splendidly in all weathers, and that the troubles experienced were nothing uncommon. But nevertheless it must have been a difficult task to handle a vessel like the Honani in heavy weather, and we repeat that Capt. Barnett, by bringing her safely out against adverse influences, deserves well of the Steamboat Company. This gallant old salt ought certainly to have been publicly complimented for his connection with the Honani by the Directors at last Saturday's historical banquet.

A REGULAR Lodge of St. John, No. 618, S. C. will be held at Freemason's Hall, Zetland Street, on Friday the 13th instant, at 8. for 8.30 p.m. precisely.

WE observe that an ingenious and painstaking statistician has recently taken the trouble to compile a table of the eccentric elopements of the past six months. The season he describes as having been "active and spasmodic." Here are a few samples. An elopement at Louisville was frustrated by a small boy, who with a well-directed snowball knocked off the coachman's hat. While he was recovering his hat the train, the unhappy couple were endeavouring to reach started, and the pursuing parents came up. In Illinois a young lady ran away barefooted; her lover insisted upon stopping to buy a pair of shoes. The delay proved fatal. A lover at Winona was so impetuous that he did not even wait for the young lady's consent, but lassoed her as she was going to church, and was dragging her away to a justice's office when help arrived. England does not figure very largely, though we find one case in which a man was eccentric enough to run off with his mother-in-law. At Batavia, Frederick L. Jackson, aged forty-nine, ran away with his father-in-law's second wife, a young woman, leaving behind his own spouse, whom he had shot in the face, rendering her totally blind, and who had been supported, with his family, by her father. One elopement ended in a tragic manner. The lady was pursued by her mother down the railroad track. The old lady, in her excitement, failed to notice the approach of a locomotive, which ran over her and killed her. A man hailing from Wisconsin eloped with his employer's wife, and left the following note for the bereaved husband:—"I have looked your woman; but you are welcome to my last week's wages, which I didn't draw; and I hope that squares things."

SAYS the Graphic—"Is 'scientist' a word which a scholar and a gentleman may use without a blush? We incline, with a reviewer in the Fall Mall Gazette, to think the term 'objectionable,' though 'objectionable' is a word to which there are no manifest objections. 'Scientist' is one of those American coinages like 'songist' for 'singer,' 'swimmist' for 'swimmer,' and the rest, which should be left to cheap comic writers. If people are too lazy to say 'philosopher' or 'man of science,' or, with Captain Costigan, 'scientific cyaracter,' they might take refuge in the decent obscurity of a foreign tongue, and say savant. 'Wisesacre,' though old, is discredited. 'Educationist,' meaning a person who addresses the Social Science Congress on questions of the theory of education, is another bad new word. It was first employed, to our knowledge, by the cruel criminal who, many years ago, beat his pupil to death with the wooden end of a skipping-rope. We do not prefer words which come from a school like that spoken of by the immortal writer to David Copperfield; a school where 'they killed a boy—with whopping.' Mr. Squeers is an evil parlour saint of 'educationists,' who, after all, are seldom anything worse than pigs. Another novel word is 'flagging.' Our soldiers began to 'flag' soon as they were on board the ships that are conveying them to the land of Khemi, which is an old name for Egypt. To 'flag' now means not to slacken and grow faint on the way, but to signal by means of flags. The last new words are 'practical and scientific milling.' Medals are offered, with the approval of the South Kensington Commissioners, for proficiency in this sport, yet none of them are likely to decorate the manly breast of Professor Donnelly. For 'scientific milling' is not sparring, and no pugilist can hope for success in 'prosecuting his studies in the mechanics and chemistry of milling.'

WRITING on "Press Anonymity" the Sydney Bulletin says—"In a discussion in the South Australian Parliament upon a Press Bill, whereby greater liberty is to be secured to the Press in South Australia, by making it exceedingly difficult to commence vexatious actions against 'good marks' of the Fourth Estate, Mr. Kingston condemned unhesitatingly the anonymity of the Press, and moved a resolution making it compulsory for the editor of a newspaper to print the names of the contributors along with their articles. Now, at first blush, this looks fair; if a man has got any public matter to bring under the notice of the authorities or of his fellows, why not have his name, and let it be seen who he is? A little examination only is necessary to show that the proposal is fair in appearance, and not otherwise. What a man may have to say is, in most cases, valuable exactly in proportion to the extent to which he is not concerned in it; for it is an axiom that whenever a man's interest enters, you must allow for his bias. This is especially the case in public matters; a man may have a complaint or a proposition to make vitally affecting the public good, and which his own personality does not concern; a while. Besides there is the chance that a man's personality might endanger the reception of his principle. For instance, would Sir John Robertson pay any attention to a proposal about the Public Lands over the signature of 'Capricornus,' or with what scornful emphasis would not Mr. William Forster peruse a letter over the dear signature of Sir Henry Parkes? And yet these respective blatant names might have valuable communications to make on a matter of pressing public moment. There is another way of looking at this matter. Many men know intimately the defects of the organization with which they are connected, and it might be a public service for them to point out such defects; yet who would dare under his full name to do so? Would any of the gentlemen conducting such a pedantic and long-winded correspondence in the daily Press on the shortcomings of the Education department (and incidentally, for their own) sign their full names under their pronouncements? Or, again, would an intelligent man in the Land Office dare to point out any of the multitude of faults of that huge circumlocution office, or show how the public business might be expedited? If he did his days in the Land Office would be assuredly numbered. And the public are too ungrateful to try services to make worth any one's while to try the experiment."

We regret to hear that a telegram has been received in town announcing the death of Mrs. Hopkins, wife of Captain Hopkins, long and favorably known in this port as the genial skipper of the Rajahattianhar.

AN Australian contemporary predicts that the libel trade must come to this:—Auctioneer, loq.—"Now gentlemen, what shall we say for this thousand pound libel, writ—the trial to come off in two months. Case is as clear as daylight. The Weekly Boreak called the plaintiff an 'esoteric alchemist.' Nobody seems to know what it means, but it is an undoubted libel. The issuer of the writ is prepared, gentlemen, to swear—and this will increase the value of the lot materially—anything. What shall we say for it? 50, 60, 70, 80, 100 guineas—thank you sir. Going at a hundred—one—two—three—gone. Mr. Bluffum."

We beg to direct the attention of the public to a humorous and musical entertainment which will be given at the Theatre Royal, City Hall, on the evening of Saturday next, by Mr. W. Russell Schmidt, late of the Bandmann-Beaudet combination, and one of the mighty tragedians, unfortunate dupes, who will be assisted on this occasion by an array of local talent. Mr. Schmidt is a versatile performer, and character actor of much ability, who, under all circumstances, is deserving of support. We have not yet seen the programme of the entertainment, but understand it is a very attractive one. Tickets may be secured and seats booked at the Novelty Store, Queen's Road Central.

RUSSIAN PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Nothing better illustrates the sloth and inefficiency of the Russian Government than the miserable condition of the public schools of her two chief cities, Moscow and St. Petersburg. The school system is more than one hundred years old; and yet the whole number of pupils in the public schools of Moscow last year was but 4691; in St. Petersburg but 4074. San Francisco, with but a third as great a population as St. Petersburg, has nearly three times as many children in the public schools as both these Russian capitals. The children in Moscow attending these so-called public schools are charged each $1.80 a year for their tuition; in St. Petersburg $2.70. And yet the yearly charge against the Government for the support of the schools is $24.30 per pupil at Moscow and $22.32 at St. Petersburg. The wages of teachers range from $103 to $360 a year. At St. Petersburg a teacher gets $360 a year and lodgings; assistants about 30 per cent. less. At Moscow the first male teacher $240. Assistants get $180. At the end of three years the salary is increased, and at every cycle of three-years till it reaches $450 for the first male teacher, and $360 for the first female. Each teacher at St. Petersburg has fifty pupils.

In both cities, and in fact all over Russia, the churches outnumber the schoolhouses by 6,000. In rural towns and districts there are no schools worth naming. The whole number of primary schools in the empire is but 22,500. Average them at fifty pupils, and we have as the whole number of children attending schools other than colleges, universities and gymnasiums, 1,125,000—a most pitiful exhibition for a nation of 85,000,000. The entire appropriation for schools, including universities, in 1879, by the Government, was but $11,000,000. A single American State, New York, expended the same year $10,440,000 on her common schools, and California, with less than 900,000 population, spent $3,010,000 in 1879 in support of her public schools.

In the United States we spent in 1879 $10,440,000 on the army—by far too much—and 78,000,000 for education. The same year Russia spent $136,500,000 on her army, and the contemptible amount of $11,000,000 on her educational system. This statement explains the difference between the most enlightened republic of the earth and the most despotic empire. It is the difference between light and darkness, life and death, steam power and ox power, the gang plow and the old-fashioned plow, the cotton mill and the old spinning wheel, a nation born to freedom and a nation just emerged from centuries of slavery.—Atlas.

CAN RUSSIA GO TO WAR?

Brave words are easily spoken, but nevertheless a nation of a hundred millions is a political fact that must be counted with in any settlement of Egyptian affairs. The Vienna correspondent of the Daily Telegraph inquires, "Who, then, does Mr. de Giers hope to intimidate by the thunders of Russian diplomacy?" To this, it may be said that just now no one does care very much about Russia or her threats, least of all the nation whose splendid fleet could instantaneously blockade every port she owns. All the same, it is senseless to play the brag on the rash assumption that Russia is rotten to the core, and is neither in a position to take the field alone against any first-rate Power, nor can count upon a single ally save Arabi Pasha. Nihilism and internal intrigue, it is true may be gradually undermining the throne of the Romanoffs, but history affords us many lessons not to rely too surely on the theory that because a nation is divided against itself it is impotent to take the field against a foreign Power. At the first cry of war it is wonderful how grievances are hushed, nor are they heard again till peace is declared. Nor should politicians forget that a foreign war is very frequently tried by weak Governments as a remedy for social inequities. Hence, at the present crisis, Russian diplomacy should be more than ever watched.

Nor are the other two arguments much better founded. Russia is perfectly able to take the field against Austria, or any other Power, including even Germany, although in the latter case the probabilities are that she would be handsomely beaten. There is ample money in the State Treasury for any military operations; her people are rich and easily taxable; she possesses artillery, rifles, and the usual paraphernalia of war in abundance; while her troops are readily and cheaply fed; indeed large portions of the Russian army are in the habit of providing for themselves, both in times of peace and war. In all her Central Asian expeditions how often has her army broken down through want of transport! Minimizing the strength of a possible foe is a long way from wise; it begets want of preparation at home. The captors of Gen. Tepe are no despicable enemy, and if it is true that Russia has no ally at this exact moment, it by no means follows that two naval Powers might not presently come to her aid. The moral of this is that England should "keep her powder dry."—Overland Mail.

HOTEL CHOW-CHOW.

It is not often, Mr. Editor, that I can afford to indulge in the luxury of a good dinner, but when I do resolve to eat my dollar, I like to get that dollar's worth. As it was a soft evening, and I had just received your remittance, the thought of a No. 1 dinner at the Hongkong Hotel suggested itself to my mind. I entered the portals of that magnificent establishment in company with several of the leading merchants and citizens who daily honor the hotel comrade with their appreciation of his culinary productions, and entered the dining hall, which was pretty well filled. I modestly sat down in a quiet corner and resolved to work steadily thro the tempting bill of fare. I must say that the boys who wait at table are a decided improvement on your European waiters, for they do not require the glimpse of a silver ball to make them attend to your repeated cry of "waiter," but generally crowd round each new comer, particularly if he is a stranger, which impresses either an idea of overwhelming hospitality or an endeavor to take some unlawful advantage, of which most travellers are always suspicious. Having secured the services of an old boy, who knew me in better days, I ordered "No. 1 on the card" and waited the result. I regret my taste for soups is not sufficiently cultivated to give an opinion of the "sheeps head and barley" which was served up. I had a spoonful and gave it up in favor of No. 2, which, I am sorry to say, had been affected by the heavy thunder storm which took place as the coolie was carrying the fish home, and resulted in the "animal" appearing at table sodden and tough. The No. 3, a baked crab, was eaten with evident relish by a gentleman sitting near me, but really as there is so much dysentery and cholera about, crab in all forms should be avoided by people who have not been accustomed to "high" living. I missed out the "entrees" entirely after looking down the list, and ordered No. 8, the "Roast Beef of old England," no, old China roast beef, or to again transpose the words and arrive at the correct form of speech, the old beef of China (roast). One thing I must confess, it gave the cook ample time (during my attempts upon the beef) to grill me a mutton chop, (which tip was given me by an old hand) and I then began to make a dinner. Potatoes, not too hot, and beans which would persist in floating in the water, (I can vouch for this as I saw them floating in the dish) as well as the boiled cucumber, formed the &c., &c., of my plate. The other articles in the "bill of fare" I was quite satisfied with seeing others eat; and I have avoided shrimp curry since I last dined at the same establishment. Pudding, "Suet" or "Sweet," I could not make out which from the menu, but either will do for it was very much of both, and with a delicious jelly I finished my dollar's worth. Now, sir, I simply write to you to show you I was there myself, and that I occasionally do mix in good society, but I think I could probably get quite as good a dinner in London for a shilling or eighteenpence, and very much better cooked. At the same time I would not mind paying my dollar more frequently at the Hongkong Hotel if the cook at that establishment would give us fewer dishes, but better served up. And don't you think that a plain glass water jug placed on each table would be an improvement on the "dead men" which are pressed into the service as "water" bottles? Such a change would be a very great improvement in the opinion of "THE OLD MAN."

HAIR DRESSING SALOON
HONGKONG HOTEL.

W. P. MOORE begs to inform the Gentlemen of Hongkong and Visitors that he has reduced the price of Hair-Cutting to 50 cents.
Having now in his employ three competent Assistants who are always in attendance, he guarantees to execute this class of work, in all its branches, with a perfection which cannot be exceeded in any part of the World.

Hair-Cutting.....50 Cents.
Shampooing.....25 Cents.
Trimming Beards.....25 Cents.

MONTHLY CUSTOMERS TAKEN AT REDUCED RATES.
RAZORS MOST CAREFULLY RE-SET.

Mr. Moore begs to recommend his GOGO SHAMPOO WASH
to the public as unrivalled by any preparation ever produced for promoting the growth of the hair. The basis of this compound is made of soap roots, the natives of the Philippine Islands never use anything else for washing their hair; they are never found bald, and it is quite common to see the females with hair from 5 to 6 feet long. By constantly using this Shampoo Wash as directed, you will NEVER BE BALD.

The proprietor offers the Wash to the public entirely confident that by its restorative properties it will without fail arrest decaying hair. It completely eradicates scurf, dandruff, and cures all diseases of the scalp. It does not contain any poisonous drugs. By its cooling properties it allays the itching and fever of the scalp, which is the great cause of people losing their hair.

Mr. Moore has succeeded in being able to put this wash up in bottles without allowing it to ferment, and he will guarantee it to keep any length of time in any climate. [516]
